Education Theorists

That All Teachers Should Know

Lev Vygotsky

Zone of Proximal Development (ZPD) – The range of skills that are a little bit more difficult than what a student can do independently.

Scaffolding – Changing the level of support to meet the ability of the child

Jean Piaget

Schema – The things a child already knows. Students connect new knowledge to an existing schema

Constructivism – Students learn by doing, rather than by being told

B. F. Skinner

Behaviorism – Positive reinforcement (praise, rewards, etc.) strengthens behavior or increases the likelihood that the behavior will be repeated. Negative reinforcement (punishment) pushes a child away from a behavior.

Jerome Bruner

Spiral Curriculum – Children can tackle challenging topics in age appropriate ways. These topics can be revisited and expanded upon year after year

Benjamin Bloom

Bloom's Taxonomy – a hierarchy of learning objectives starting with knowledge and growing in complexity to evaluation.

Howard Gardner

Multiple Intelligences – Humans have several ways of processing information (musical, visual, verbal, logical, etc.)
